War-Time Footing

"U. S. PARALLEL"

First Phase of Two Billion
Dollar Defense Scheme
Planned

By H. K. Reynolds
L. N. S. Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Mar. 4—(INS)—Britain today called upon Parliament for an increase of £9,880,000 ($49,400,000) in naval estimates over last year to keep the fleets on a war-time footing, while admiralty authorities revealed Britain's naval expansion plans contemplate a friendly parallel in the United States.

The naval budget for 1936 calls for £69,930,000 ($349,650,000)—not including the cost of the two battleships, aircraft carrier, and 20 cruisers planned for the first phase of the two billion dollar defense scheme. Supplemental estimates to be submitted to parliament from time to time as the expansion program unfolds, will take care of new construction.

With army and air force estimated to be presented to the Houses tomorrow and Friday, the total will exceed £155,000,000 ($775,000,000), an increase of £31,000,000 ($155,000,000) over 1935.

Offer Premiership To
Prince Fumimaro Konoye

TOKYO, Mar. 4—(INS)—Prince Fumimaro Konoye, non-militarist President of the House of Peers, today was offered the Premiership, but is understood to have declined.

Prince Konoye visited the United States in 1934, and he sent both his sons to America to be educated.

NEWPORTVILLE

The residents of Newportville will be shocked to learn of the death of the Rev. Gerald H. Snell, 33, a former pastor of the Newportville Church. He left here several years ago to accept a charge in Corinth, Mich. The Rev. Snell met his death during a blinding snowstorm in which several cars collided. His bride was slightly injured, while the Rev. Snell's death was instantaneous. It will be remembered that he returned three years ago to officiate at the wedding of Miss Edna Ingraham and William Enoch in the Newportville Church.

The cheerful workers society will hold its business meeting this evening at the home of Mrs. Harry Backhouse. Harry Eny is confined to his home under the doctor's care.

IS LAID TO REST

YARDLEY, Mar. 4—Funeral service for Mrs. Lillian Satterthwaite, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alberta Davis, Narberth, was held from the Makefield Friends Meeting, Saturday, with speaking by Charles A. Rowe, and Mrs. Charles E. Clausen. Interment was in the adjoining burying ground. Mrs. Satterthwaite was carried to the grave by Elwood Stapler, Charles E. Clausen, Joseph Yardley, Samuel Yardley, Robert Stapler, and Raymond Shortledge. Mrs. Satterthwaite was the widow of Samuel C. Satterthwaite, who died a few weeks ago, and spent most of her life on a farm near Woodside.

SELASSIE NAMES CERTAIN
PROVISIONS; PEACE MOVEReady to Discuss Terms With Italy, If Troops Withdraw
To Oct. 16th Position

RELIES ON THE LEAGUE

(Copyright, 1936, by I. N. S.)
ADDIS ABABA, Mar. 4—(INS)—Emperor Haile Selassie is ready to discuss peace terms with Italy, it was said in official circles today, providing Mussolini withdraws his troops to the position they held before October 16, at the outbreak of the Italo-Ethiopian war.

The Emperor has not changed his position during the five months of warfare, and is still relying upon the League of Nations to help defend his monarchy and to hope for further sanctions.

In Addis Ababa, officials are hoping the Emperor will talk peace with Duce, as proposed by the League of Nations. High officials, state the Negus at present considers it more important to superintend war from his Dessaye headquarters, but if and when necessity demands it, he will not hesitate to lead his troops in person against the enemy.

Italian reports that the Emperor is hiding are untrue. The Lion of Judah has never hidden, and all Ethiopians know he never will, his aides assert. Some time ago the Emperor told International News Service:

"I will put myself at the head of my troops when the necessity arises."

Since the Emperor means what he says, the entire nation is waiting half fearfully to see the Emperor fulfill his promise.

Ethiopians, ignoring the Italian claims of smashing victories, declared the positions of the Italians daily is becoming more and more dangerous.

"One high military official told International News Service: 'We have got them where we want them.'"

Fierce Hand-to-Hand Fights
Reported at Fenchow Walls

PEIPING, Mar. 4—(INS)—Fierce hand-to-hand fighting almost under the walls of Fenchow, with a score of American missionaries in peril, was going on today in Shansi Province between Provincial troops and Communists.

With the Reds running over an estimated 7,000 square miles and totaling at least 10,000 men, a spokesman for the Nanking Central Chinese Government said that if the movement is not checked within three weeks, it will spread throughout North China.

Japanese military intervention may be the result of further Communist inroads, authorities said.

Some Americans have evacuated Fenchow for the second time. Others, who fled during an earlier Red occupation of the city, intend to remain in Fenchow in the hope that its fortifications can repel the Reds this time.

HURT IN FALL

Said to have run from behind a truck and fallen when another car was seen approaching, Robert Coles, Croydon, was slightly hurt yesterday. He was treated at Harriman Hospital for contusions of the right cheek, right knee, and both hands. After the wounds were dressed he returned to his home.

BOONDOGLING 'RELIEF' FOR POLITICAL PARASITES

(New York American, March 1, 1936)

United States Senator Rush D. Holt, DEMOCRAT, of West Virginia, in a speech made in the Senate on Wednesday, charged that the Federal relief organization in West Virginia is so completely DOMINATED BY POLITICS that it is impossible for a person to obtain relief without the approval of a DEMOCRATIC COUNTY BOSS.

And he proceeded to buttress his charge by citing specific instances of relief applications being sent to local political leaders to be "sorted out" so that the "RIGHT BOYS" can get on the pay-roll; of salaries paid to political appointees far beyond their previous earnings, and of a State Administrator who aspired to become Governor "because 55,000 men"—on relief rolls—"can make anybody Governor and they know where they get their jobs."

Senator Holt appeared in the Senate chamber with a pile of documents, grimly announcing that he intended to tell all, then and there.

Whether he told all or not, he certainly TOLD A PLENTY. "I will prove," said he, "that a person could not get on relief unless he got an O. K. from the county boss; and where there is not a county boss, there is a county committee, and that county committee passes upon the persons who are to be on relief rolls."

He charged immense waste and extravagance in the administration on relief in his State, mentioning mere INCREASES of salary for 27 appointees, sufficient to care for 826 unemployed and their families.

He cited the appointment of five engineers to a road project less than two miles long in the County of Kanawha, West Virginia, one drawing $200 a month, another $150 and three others $350 a month.

"And yet," said he, "although we had an engineer on that project... all these men were put on the payroll, and for what? For politics."

WELL!—GENTLEMEN OF THE RAW DEAL—WHAT ABOUT IT?

This is no veiled insinuation. It has no partisan flavor. It does not proceed from the American Liberty League, or from the camp of "entrenched greed."

It does not issue from the mouth of an Old Guard Republican—or an "Old Dealer," as Senator Joe Robinson describes anyone who criticizes the waste, folly, oppression or incompetence of the New Deal.

Not at all!

This charge comes straight from a United States Senator who was elected as a New Dealer.

He is a Democrat, not a Republican, and his accusations included a Democratic fellow-Senator, his colleague from West Virginia, whom he charged with complicity in the use of relief moneys for political purposes.

How does this square, Mr. President, with your speech at Yale, when you said:

"There has been no period in our history where what we call (in the wrong sense) politics and (in the wrong sense) politicians enter less than they do today in the conduct of government."

And how does it square with the feigned abhorrence of Raw Dealers in general at the idea of exploiting politically the needs of the unfortunate, and UTILIZING THE NATIONAL CHARITY AND THE BILLIONS WRUNG FROM OUR PEOPLE BY TAXATION, FOR POLITICAL AND PARTY ENDS?

MORRISVILLE COUNCIL

REJECTS PLANT BIDS

Will Advertise for New Bids for Improvement of Water Plant

FOUR BIDS TOO HIGH

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 4—Because four of the bids were far above the PWA allotment and one was irregular, all the estimates received for the improvement of the water works were thrown out by Common Council at a special meeting. New bids will be advertised for immediately, under the same plans and specifications as approved, and will be opened by Council at a meeting to be held in the Council Chamber Tuesday night, March 24.

Borough Solicitor Willard S. Curtin was in Harrisburg yesterday conferring with WPA officials and his report was received by Council last night in executive session.

Council also voted last night to have members of the water committee, along with Councilman William Davie, to co-operate with the borough solicitor in defending the law suit for $10,000 damages instituted against the borough by Carl B. Watson for use of the water mains in Edzehill Gardens to supply water to residents there.

Several communications were read from the State Board of Health urging the borough to be ready for any emergency if the purity of the water served the residents here is menaced by the high water. It was stated that the engineers of the State Department are ready to assist the borough at any time to keep the water pure.

King's Theatre Guild to Give Presentation
Here

A WHISTLING SOLOIST

Music and novelty acts are part of the many treats in store for those attending the King's Theatre Guild presentation of "Broken Dishes," in Mutual Aid Hall on March 10th.

In addition to the splendid performance of the guild an original "centre" act is planned. Miss Margery Quinn, a talented whistling soloist, will entertain between the acts.

The proceeds from the entertainment will be used in purchasing supplies for the students enrolled at the W. P. A. school. There are over 300 students enrolled from Bristol and vicinity. Classes are held daily and evenings in the old school building located at 305 Wood street. Anyone over 16, and not attending school, is urged to register for courses. The school is free. Organizations or individuals interested are encouraged to attend. A part of the daily and evening schedule is as follows: Commercial work, business English, arithmetic, spelling from 9 a. m. to 12 a. m.; French (Mon., Wed.), German and Foundation English, 1 p. m.-3 p. m.; Evenings: Drafting, music, philosophy, and commercial work, seven to nine.

Mrs. Harry Bickert and daughter Ethel paid a visit to relatives in Philadelphia one day, recently. On Friday Mr. and Mrs. Bickert celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary.

FALLSINGTON

The Friends Nature Study Group met on Sunday afternoon in the Orthodox Meeting House. During the bad weather the group has been meeting at the meeting house, instead of the homes.

Rev. and Mrs. Francis H. Smith and Rev. and Mrs. Strauhauer, Trenton, N. J., were Thursday visitors in Philadelphia.

The March meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. Hannah Hartman. March being the anniversary month, a covered dish luncheon will be held. The committee is as follows: Mrs. Elizabeth Winder, chairman, Beatrice Drews and Mrs. Jane E. Bacon.

Some members of the Delaware Valley Grange, attended the Pomona Grange, held at Middletown, on Wednesday.

Walter McIlhenny entertained some friends at a theatre party in Trenton, N. J., in honor of his eighth birthday anniversary.

James and Louis Coghill, New York, were recent visitors at the home of their parents, Dr. and Mrs. George Coghill.

DON'T DRIVE YOUR CAR
WITHOUT YOUR LICENSEHighway Patrol Is Checking
Vehicles On All
Highways

PENALTY, COSTS, $12.50

Don't drive your automobile unless you have a 1936 operator's license.

Highway patrol is conducting a vigorous campaign and hundreds of cars are being stopped daily and all licenses checked.

Yesterday the Highway Patrol was stationed here near the Municipal Building and along with a Bristol police officer stopped cars and checked the licenses. Four arrests were made and each was fined $10 and costs. The hearings will be held before Justice of Peace James Guy.

A car driven by a chauffeur, who was driving the wife of his employer, was halted and the chauffeur did not have a 1936 operator's license. He was ordered to park his machine, was given a hearing and fined. He was not permitted to drive the car and another chauffeur had to be sent for, to drive the car back to Eddington.

A Nebraska man was arrested by Officer Burns for operating with 1935 tags. He did not have an operator's license. When given a hearing he informed Judge Guy that he had his 1936 tags but did not put them on because he did not have his operator's license. He went to Philadelphia and returned later with his 1936 tags. He did not have an operator's license, however, and was fined.

Twenty-two arrests were made Sunday, by members of the State Highway Patrol stationed at Doylestown and South Langhorne sub-stations, of persons not having their 1936 operator's licenses.

Practically every kind of excuse under the sun was given by the "forgetful" ones who were caught, but the principal excuse was that the license was slow coming and instead they produced affidavits that they had applied for licenses.

"And that excuse is no good," declared Corporal William Engle, of the Doylestown sub-station. "You have no produce your own license and not an affidavit," he said.

In Morrisville, the patrol office of the South Langhorne sub-station was checking up on motorists on the Lincoln Highway. Fifteen arrests were made and all will be summoned to appear and pay a fine and costs amounting to $12.50.

The Doylestown officers arrested seven other motorists and they, too, will be summoned to appear before a Justice of the Peace.

Edgely Boy Named To School Magazine Art Staff

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 4—Ralph M. Biderback, former Bristol high school student, now a sophomore in the marketing department of the school of commerce, Temple University, was recently elected to the art staff of the Owl, the University humor magazine. Membership on the staff is based on the excellency of contributions.

Biderback, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Biderback, 56 Radcliffe street, Edgely, graduated from Bristol High in June, 1934. While there he was actively engaged in dramatics, and an officer of the dramatics club. Besides being a principal in the operetta, "Oh Doctor" in 1934, he was also a leading character in the annual high school play of that year.

He was president of the spelling club while at Bristol High; treasurer of the library club; and a member of the glee club.

Biderback, who is studying advertising at Temple, has had many of his original cartoons and other drawings published in the Owl.

Prepare Conference On Crime

Harrisburg, Mar. 4—Preparation for being made for the Pennsylvania Conference on Crime, authorized by the last session of the Legislature, to be held some time during the coming Fall.

Originally scheduled to be held this spring, the conference was postponed until Fall by Attorney-General Charles J. Margiotti, who set the date for the convocation "shortly after the 1937 session of the Legislature." By having the conference only a short time before the General Assembly met, Margiotti explained that the conference will be able to deal with conditions as they will develop.

S. E. Jenkins Slain

London, England, Mar. 4—S. E. Jenkins, father of Wendy Barrie, English moving picture actress now in Hollywood, was found shot dead in Hong-Kong, Reuters reported today. Miss Barrie was the adopted daughter of Jenkins.

Jenkins was a barrister, well known in English circles. Police said they are unable to find a motive for suicide. Servants discovered the body.

10 Million Dollar Fire

Easton, Pa., Mar. 4—Sending a pall of smoke over the area, a fire of unknown origin early today raged for three hours in the Knights of Columbus Home, here, before firemen brought the flames under control. Officers of the Club estimated the damage to be about $10,000.

To Try Mutineers

Tokyo, Mar. 4—An emergency delegate established a special military tribunal to try the participants in last week's mutiny. The government communique announced the new tribunal would try 1400 officers and men, who participated in the mutiny. Severe punishment is expected, however, only for the nineteen officers, who were the leaders.

Displeased With Hitler

Amsterdam, Mar. 4—The aging Wilhelm II, former Emperor of Germany, has begun to change his mind about Adolf Hitler, and his raising the Nazi government, as a "necessity" for post war Germany, and as a necessity for the German monarchy. The former Kaiser has abandoned entirely his hope of re-ascending the throne, from which he fled when the Reich army collapsed at the end of the World War. Wilhelm's second wife, Hermine, has a strong influence over him in his opinion of young Hitler.

HUGHES LEADS TEAM

(By L. C. Tomlinson)

"Bill" Dougherty's Bristol High School Bunnies again played fine basketball for 16 minutes but flopped in the second half. The Cardinal and Gray fortunately had enough lead to coast through to victory. The final returns read 23-19 over a favored Bristol and Gold quint from Doylestown High on the local high school floor last night and advanced to the quarter-finals of the Bucks County Basketball Tournament.

The Bunnies really clicked in the first two cantoes and rang the bell for 18 tallies, while holding the visitors to 10.

After Miller dented the cards for one point for the Doylestown club, Nick Hufnell made a twin pointer and Punk Zefferi converted his foul. Then the visiting Black and Gold five rang up four fouls in a row, to take the lead. Then Charlie Hughes, Bristol pivot ace, hit the nets three times in a row and Bristol took the lead, never to be headed.

GARDNER OUT FOR CONGRESS FROM THE
BUCKS-LEHIGH DIST.U. S. Commissioner Makes Announcement of His Candidacy for Nomination

ISSUES STATEMENT

Encouraged by Support of His Friends Two Years Ago

United States Commissioner Theodore R. Gardner yesterday made formal announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Congressman.

In a statement issued yesterday afternoon, Mr. Gardner announced: "Encouraged by the faithful support of my friends two years ago, and feeling that

THEODORE R. GARDNER

I owe them an opportunity to make another effort in my behalf, I am happy to submit my candidacy for Representative in Congress from the Bucks-Lehigh district.

"In the coming campaign I look forward with pleasure to the renewal of the many fine associations that I formed during my recent effort. I can only promise, as before, that I shall give my best."

Born in Allentown, Commissioner Gardner, attended the public schools of Allentown and graduated from the Allentown High School. He attended the Bethlehem Preparatory School and graduated from Muhlenberg College and the University of Pennsylvania Law School. Mr. Gardner served a two-year enlistment in the U. S. Navy, at the expiration of which he was honorably discharged from the Naval Hospital at Mare Island, California.

He has been practicing law for the past five years and maintains offices in the Ainey building at Fifth and Hamilton streets, Allentown. He resides at 168 Main street, Emaus.

Mr. Gardner has been United States Commissioner since 1931, having recently been appointed for his second four-year term. He is also solicitor to the sheriff of Lehigh county, but announces that he will relinquish this position in order to devote his entire time to the campaign.

Mr. Gardner was a candidate for Congress two years ago, but was defeated by his Democratic opponent by the small margin of 2967 votes.

Class in Philosophy
Starts With 6 Students

The class in Philosophy, taught by Landon G. Haynes, in Bristol under the WPA Recreation and Adult Education Program is growing rapidly. Six students came out at the first meeting and at the next session there were fourteen.

The members of the group receiving instruction are people who have received at least some college training and a number of them are college graduates.

The Historical approach will be used in presenting the subject. It will be closely correlated with sociology, economics, political science and psychology. At the present time, the philosophers ante-dating Socrates are being studied.

Later on a rather careful study of Plato and his "Republic" will be made. Aristotle will then be taken up and the Dawn of Science. The Stoics and Epicureans will be considered. The rise of Scholasticism and finally the modern stream of philosophy will be gone into.

In connection with modern philosophy, the materialistic, the idealistic and the pragmatic solutions to the problem of truth will be covered. Mr. Haynes states that he will be glad to have others enroll.

Those interested should get in touch with Miss Dora Thompson, WPA School, Wood street school building, Bristol. This school is open from 9 to 12 a. m. and from 1 to 3 p. m. every day except Saturday. The class in Philosophy meets on Thursday evenings at 7 p. m., once a week at 219 Jefferson avenue, Bristol. All instruction is free.

Mrs. Nicolas Trannotti, Jefferson avenue, has concluded a stay in Brooklyn, N. Y., with relatives.

MAKING BASE BALL "NICE"

We string along so regularly with Prexy Angell of Yale in his blasts against some tendencies in college sport that we hope we do not misinterpret his remarks to the alumni.

Decrying the tearing down of goal posts, the booing of officials at football and other games, he goes on to cite the practice of trying to rattle college base ball pitchers, a custom borrowed, he thinks, from the professional diamond. We trust his complaint applies only to the amateur game.

The truth about professional ball is that it is only superficially a contest of skill between players, many of whom function with their minds on other matters, and some—we are told—being unable to say whom they are playing. Fundamentally it is a spectators' game, being what the psychologists call a catharsis—a cleansing of the spirit by violent uprushes of feeling, eruptions of partisan heat and explosions of outraged loyalties. Base ball is a boon to the timid, the repressed, the one who suffers sensations of inferiority. Anonymous and brave, he can heap anathema on the adverse gods from the security of a 75-cent seat. At home or the office he may be the veriest of worms; in a ball park his is the traditional right to tell the world where to get off.

About college base ball we do not know—in fact, it was news that Yale knows the game—and certainly its ways should not be carried into golf, as Dizzy Dean is said to have done in Florida, where he has been jumping up and down and screaming at opponents at the tee. But in base ball, the huc and cry, the horrid imprecation, the loud reflections on ability, eyesight and ancestry are the game's chief reason for being. Close up Yale if we must, but let us not make base ball a gentleman's pastime.

AT HIGH COURT BAR

In 45 days of the present session of the United States supreme court, 567 lawyers took the oath admitting them to practice before that bar. That is almost four times the number admitted in the first seventeen years of the court's existence. Fewer than 150 names appear on the roll of attorneys admitted between 1790 and 1807.

Some names still familiar to the public appear among the first 150. These include John Quincy Adams, Henry Clay, Francis Scott Key, whose fame rests on something quite distinct from his legal attainments, Charles Lee and John Marshall. Will the 567 names, newly appended to the Supreme Court rolls, produce a handful that will last as long as a few picked at random from the 1790-1807 list?

Probably not, although that is not meant as a reflection on contemporary men of law. In the early days of the supreme court, the law was not an overcrowded profession; and the docket was not filled with the bewildering diversity of cases which now beset our court of last resort. In that earlier period, only a small and select group of practitioners had occasion to enter supreme court portals.

Elizabeth Hoepfel, speaking for grand opera artists, says Garbo was built up by hallyhoo. We had rather thought of the divine Greta as standing on her own feet.

"DAUGHTERS OF VENUS"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

SYNOPSIS

Juliet Rankin's pulchritude wins her an executive position in the beauty institute operated by wealthy Madame Hubert. At first, Thomas O'Hara, the handsome manager, is antagonistic toward Juliet, but he finally admits he is in love with her and has been trying to fight that feeling. Due to fatal resemblance to her dead sweetheart, Juliet submits to O'Hara's caresses. Finding them together, Dr. Franz Von Guerdon, beauty specialist also in love with Juliet, is insanely jealous. He threatens to kill Juliet if she bothers with O'Hara, stating that she belongs to him. Later, Juliet tries to convince O'Hara that they do not love each other but were both overcome with emotion the night she permitted him to kiss her. He shows her an engagement and a wedding ring, saying, "Here's how much I meant it—sap that I was!" Juliet is assigned to work with Von Guerdon. It is when he concentrates on his work, ignoring her, that Juliet likes him best.

CHAPTER XIII

"I wonder why a man of your ability wastes his time on facial surgery?" she asked him one afternoon.

"Perhaps it's because it makes so many people happy," he smiled. "Do you know of anything better than that?"

"Saying sick people's lives might be better," she hazarded.

"Pardon, but you're entirely wrong. There are ten thousand men who can perform an appendectomy with their eyes shut, but there are not more than three in the world who can make a woman of fifty look like thirty."

Perhaps there was a crushing answer somewhere in the universe to his argument, but Juliet at the moment could not think of it. All the same, she knew there was something hollow in his words and that he probably was fibing when he uttered them.

But any possible rejoinder was forestalled by the entrance of O'Hara followed by a poorly-dressed girl who managed to give the impression she was trotting at his heels like an alfredele.

O'Hara looked around over the wrong shoulder and missed sight of her "Good Lord! Have I lost her?" he exclaimed.

"Here I am, Mr. O'Hara," piped a babyish voice, as she came around on the other side.

"Ah, there you are indeed," said O'Hara, courteously. "Folks, I want you to meet Miss Katie Schmidt. She's been wandering around the place for a half hour, and wound up in my office instead of over here where she belongs. From what I gather she wants to be beautified."

Katie seemed to beam with gratitude towards O'Hara, but this may have been an illusion because one of her eyes was terribly crossed. Nor was this all—her nose was somewhat askew, her complexion mottled, and her long mouse-colored hair had a lamentable tendency to straggle at the ends.

"Thank you kindly, Mr. O'Hara," said the girl.

"And thank you, Miss Schmidt," returned O'Hara politely. "I wish you'd look this young lady over, Dr. Von Guerdon, and see what is to be done about her."

"Delighted to do what I can for any friend of yours," returned Von Guerdon maliciously.

O'Hara looked the surgeon straight in the eye, ignoring Juliet as completely as though she were not in the room.

"That's right, Von Guerdon," he said levelly; "Miss Schmidt is a friend of mine, even though I have just had the honor of meeting her."

"Thank you kindly, Mr. O'Hara," said the baby voice again.

There they stood, two fairly decent and reasonably civilized men glowering at each other like angry dogs, and all because the very presence of slim-ankled Juliet was sufficient to draw their nerves taut and set them strutting.

"It's all right, Mr. O'Hara," said Juliet, bowing on bewildered Katie Schmidt. "I'll look after her."

For the first time O'Hara seemed to notice Juliet.

"I'll appreciate that, Miss Rankin," he said formally, and went out of the door before Katie had very kindly again.

When O'Hara had gone, he it said to Von Guerdon's credit, he was as considerate of Katie Schmidt as though she were a dowager with Pekinese and chauffeur and her own limousine.

"Won't you sit down and tell us what you want?" he asked, but his crisp professional air seemed to afflict Katie Schmidt with an increased stupidity that left her round-eyed and speechless.

"Here, sit down by me," said Juliet, encouragingly.

Stiffly the girl seated herself on the edge of the sofa.

"How much money will it cost," she popped out, "to do me over—like her?"

It was plain that "her" meant Juliet, and the baby voice had forfeited something of its infancy in favor of a rather startling brassy note.

Von Guerdon was as considerate of Katie Schmidt as though she were a dowager with Pekinese and chauffeur and her own limousine.

Von Guerdon contracted his brows seriously.

"You mean everything—the complete done over? Not just a touch here and there?"

Then Katie Schmidt burst into her idea.

"The whole works!" she declared fervently. "You can straighten eyes, can't yuh? Only one's crossed."

"We can fix that," Von Guerdon assured her.

"Noses too?"

"I think so." He gave that twisted organ a keener glance.

"Yes, but it's a delicate operation that takes time. It's expensive."

"If yuh can fix them two things the rest is a cinch," said Katie.

"I hear about these face peels. Yuh put on some kind of stuff that eats away the outside skin and the under-skin comes out pink and smooth like a baby's. You do that here?"

"Frequently," she was assured.

"Swell!" exclaimed Katie with mounting excitement in her face and voice. "The hair's nothing. I could almost do it myself but I want it done right. Platinued—not bleached. Know what I mean? My teeth ain't so awful but they ain't straight and they need fillin' Place where I worked, the lady had a porcelain jacket put on one of her, and it was marvellous. I'd want yuh to put jackets clear across the front, top and bottom. Yuh won't have to do nothing to my finger cause that's practically perfect already. Ought to see me in a bathing suit—yuh'd be surprised."

Von Guerdon's expression was not hopeful.

"I see," he murmured, thinking of the cost.

The girl clasped her hands together and then unclasped them quickly. Rough, grimy little hands used to work.

For a minute nothing was said.

As the silence in the room waited for someone to break it, the distorted gaze looked down at the carpet, then moved around, lifted no higher than the backs of the smart upholstered chairs, the standing bookcases, the opulent desk at the far end.

Juliet inspected the girl, so silent now, and she seemed like a small injured animal who had crept to them for help.

"Well, I guess—" Katie Schmidt began, fidgeting her face slightly, "I guess I'll set me back a-plenty."

Juliet sent an appealing glance to Von Guerdon but he shook his head. But when he spoke his voice was considerate.

"I'm quite sure, Miss Schmidt, you couldn't afford the fees we are forced to charge here. Only the rich class of people have such work done. None of these—alterations —are necessary for your general health, you know. If I were you I think I'd put the whole idea out of my head and cultivate some other interest. After all, beauty isn't everything. Friends, for example are much more important."

Katie shot up to her feet with a rush of color under her murky skin. "Friends—don't make me laugh!" she shrieked. "I'd like to get rid of the ones I've got already. All I want to know is what will it cost? That's all—how much?"

Juliet dreaded to see the girl's disappointment. "If I were you," she said gently, "I believe I'd get more fun spending what I had on some real nice clothes."

Miss Schmidt turned swiftly.

"If you was me!" she jeered. "If you was me you'd soon see how it felt to look like I do! It's me that's got to look in the mirror every day of my darn life! I gotaz much right as anybody to be beautiful. It's nobody's business but my own, I ain't doing this for any man. I'm don't it to please nobody but my own lonesome self!"

The outburst left her panting slightly. Von Guerdon made a few quick notes on a pad of paper.

"All right—here it is," he said shortly. "We couldn't undertake the work for less than three thousand dollars."

To his surprise Katie received the estimate unblinkingly.

"That includes the teeth and everything?" she asked shrewdly.

"I've included the dental work," he told her. "Now, the only question is—do you have three thousand dollars, Miss Schmidt?"

"No, I ain't," she said, the fire dying in her voice. "An' I never will have that much."

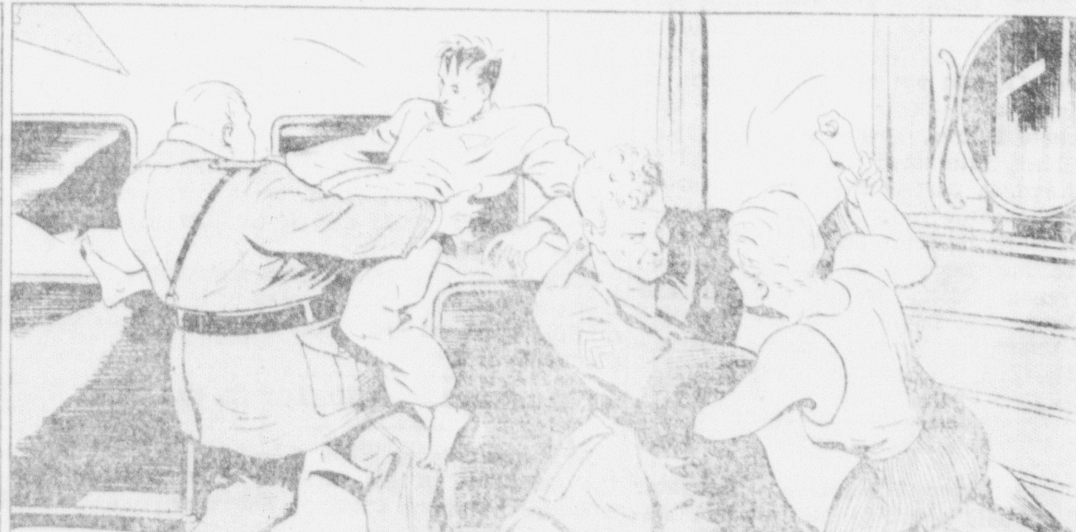

Without another word she crossed the room, opened the door, and disappeared into the obscurity from which she had come.

ADD SPRING TOUCHES TO WINTER CLOTHES IS TIMELY ADVICE

By Rhandena A. Armstrong
(Home Economics Representative)

The news of southern clothes filling stores and being pictured in the magazines inspires us all to give our dark winter clothes a spring-like touch.

Fresh neckwear is supplied in abundance at this time of the year. There are two types, the severely tailored and the more dressy, lace-trimmed or frilled. The tailored neckwear, for wear with the wool dress or suit, probably is high at the throat. Pique and crepe are suitable for this. Organdy or mousseline and lace give a dainty touch to a silk dress.

In addition to the collar and cuff combinations, there are vestees of pique with small high collars and narrow string ties of black or colored patent leather.

This is the time to bring out the spring tailored suit of last year. Add a fresh spring touch and wear it under your winter coat. An attractive false front or blouse may be made for a suit from sheer cotton, such as organdy or batiste, and trimmed with tiny lace edgings. Again, these may be high at the throat or with a moderate V neck.

Brilliant colors at this season add a fresh, stimulating note to one's dark wardrobe. Bright blue, green, sulphur yellow, and red are popular. One may find gloves, purses, and belts in these colors. Very gay and attractive purses and belts are fashioned from colored patent leather. It is used in the pastel shades as well as the darker colors.

Why not add a smart touch to your simple dark dress, by adding a new belt in one of these colors? It is easy to make one with a buckle and two pieces of grosgrain ribbon in bright shades which may be used interchangeably. Painted or natural color wooden buckles will be used on the spring and summer dresses. Buttons will be more important than ever and made in all designs, colors, and of many materials.

This is the season when colorful prints are so refreshing under dark coats. Bring out your last year's print—match one of its colors in a new ribbon belt or scarf—and wear it now.

Do not forget the dozens of colorful handkerchiefs from which to select a color note.

SUNDAY DINNER

Suggestions

By ANN PAGE

THE break in the weather came just in time to make fresh fish moderately plentiful and inexpensive for Lent. It also brought lower prices on eggs and butter. Cheese prices had not been affected but this is always an economical and nourishing food which can be used to replace meat.

Fresh vegetables are plentiful and very reasonable considering the season. Beets, new cabbage, carrots, new potatoes and spinach are the outstanding values.

All fresh meats are cheaper, particularly beef and pork, and lamb and veal in lesser degree.

Winter fruits still have the market though strawberries and pineapples are becoming more plentiful. South American grapes, nectarines, pears and plums are available.

Here are three menus for Sunday dinner at different budget levels.

Low Cost Dinner

Chuck Steak Macaroni and Cheese
Sweet-sour Beets
Bread and Butter
Apple Cobbler
Tea or Coffee MILK

Medium Cost Dinner

Baked Lamb's Liver Mashed Potatoes
Green Beans

MORRISVILLE-BRISTOL CLASH AGAIN TONIGHT

Bristol High School and Morrisville's Blue and Gold will meet for the fourth time this year when tonight the two school fives clash in the quarter-finals of the Bucks County Basketball Tournament held at Bristol High School, under the auspices of Coach "Bill" Dougherty.

Bristol earned the right to meet the Bulldogs when they defeated a strong Doylestown High five last night and are just waiting for another chance at the scalps of Hoffman's crew from up the river.

Morrisville High will come down on the other hand determined to defeat the Cardinal and Gray for the third time in four starts. The Bulldogs now hold a two-one advantage over Bill Dougherty's boys in the series.

The Bunnies opened up by winning on the home court, 17-14, over Morrisville and then dropped a pair of decisions to the Bulldogs, one on the Blue and Gold court and another for the championship of the circuit on Trenton's Junior High School last Saturday night.

This should prove to be a great battle for the Cardinal and Gray always play fine basketball on the home court. In 13 ball games on the home soil, the Bunnies have emerged victorious in 12 of them. Morrisville will be favored, however, because of their record of wins over Bristol.

This is a fine chance for the Bunnies to prove that the Lower Bucks County champs can be beaten.

In the preliminary game, Quakertown High, another big club from up the county, will meet Bensalem High. George Reimer's boys are planning to upset the dope and defeat the Quakers.

Line-ups:
Bristol position Morrisville
Zefferi forward Young
Carnvale forward Harrison
Hughes center Aiello

ROBERTS WILL TRY TO UNMASK WRESTLER

TRENTON, Mar. 4.—Yvon Robert, spectacular young French-Canadian grappler, will attempt to perform a feat that baffled such sterling matmen as Joe Savoldi, Emil Dusek, Fred Grubmeir, Vic Christie and other lesser known wrestlers. Robert's job at the Arena tonight will be to try to unmask the mysterious Blue Mask, hooded bone-bender, who has become a real menace on the Arena canvas.

Robert, in his only appearance here, took the fans by storm by the sensational manner in which he downed Dr. Len Hall. No other wrestler ever appeared to the mat addicts as did the handsome young Canuck.

The winning off-color tactics of the Blue Mask has made him the most hated grappler that has performed in Trenton in a long time. He stops at nothing to win and his style and methods have earned him the hatred of the cash customers.

Two falls out of three, 90-minute time limit, will decide the contest, and a real, gruelling, action-full battle is on tap when Robert and the Mask come to grips.

A bout packed with thrills will be the 45 minute, one fall to decide, semi-windup between the saved-off Jewish grappler, Able Coleman, and the flashy Ralph Garibaldi. The fur should fly when these two ace mat men clash. A special event will mark the return of one of the most popular wrestlers ever to appear here, Scotty McDougall, eccentric Scot, who has always pleased the fans. Scotty meets a tartar in his first bid in Dr. Len Hall, rough and tumble Omaha druggist, whose aggressiveness and wild tactics have made him an Arena public enemy.

Sandor Vary, acrobatic Hungarian youngster, who is making the fans forget Sandor Szabo, opens the card against the North Jersey veteran mat agitator, Tommy Draak, who claims that he cannot get the stars to meet him. If he gets over Vary, Matchmaker Johnny Ipp has promised him a crack at the top-notchers.

SOUTHAMPTON SWAMPED BY SELLS-PERK TEAM

By L. C. Tomlinson
Coach Earle Drucker's Sells-Perk team swamped Southampton 55-6 and advanced to the quarter-finals of the Bucks County tournament.

It was really a rout for the up county boys and they held an 18-2 lead at the end of the first period. They lengthened their advantage to 31-4 at the intermission and piled up 24 more tallies in the last two cantos while holding the Lower Bucks County club to 2.

Coach Drucker's team used his substitutes throughout the game and at no time was the large lead of Sellersville threatened.

One fact about the ball game was noticeable, however. Southampton High trailing by many points at various stages of the game never gave up. Red's Eagle, carrot-topped guard from Southampton threw a pair of field goals through to lead his club and he urged his mates to keep trying and not to quit. The Blue and White did not and they went down fighting.

Rabbits Witwee, Jim Hackett and Ray Kulp led the winners with 11, 12 and 10, respectively. Clay Stover came next with nine while Dick Conrad had six to his credit. The Blue and Gray machine is a well-balanced unit and should give the rest of the clubs in the tourney plenty to worry about.

BENSALEM FIVE TAKES GAME FROM FACULTY

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Mar. 4.—The Bensalem quintet nosed out the faculty in the last minute of play on the Bensalem floor, Monday evening.

MacKenzie's two-pointer tied the score with a minute to go, and with only seconds to go, T. Malone sunk a shot from under the basket.

"Jim" McMahon led the Bensalem scorers with four field goals and a foul for nine points. He was followed closely by Malone, who tallied four field goals for nine points. Reimer led the faculty scorers with three field goals and a like number of fouls for nine points, followed by Charles who tallied three field goals and two fouls for eight points.

Bristol High Wins Over Doylestown, 23-19

more blew their lead and watched Doylestown climb to within four points of overtaking them. They once again failed to count in the third quarter. Then with four minutes of play left in the final quarter and having yet to score in the half, the Bunnies, led by Hughes, made a pair of field goals and a foul to put the game on ice.

Charlie Hughes led the Cardinal and Gray with six double-deckers, while Punk Zefferi accounted for one from the floor and four from the gift line. Walt Worthington had nine tallies for the losers.

Red-Haired Sunburst of the Links

By BURNLEY

A red-headed tomboy who has been playing golf just three years and has reached the ripe old age of 17 is the biggest box-office attraction in women's golf today.

Patty Berg, freckle-faced Minneapolis gal, who astounded the links world last summer by reaching the finals of the national championship, is the reigning sensation of the Florida winter golf season, with a couple of spectacular victories over formidable fields to her credit.

Her triumph in the Miami-Biltmore tourney early this month was especially notable, as the field included such famous links stars as Mrs. Opal Hill, Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews, Marion Miley and Jean Bauer.

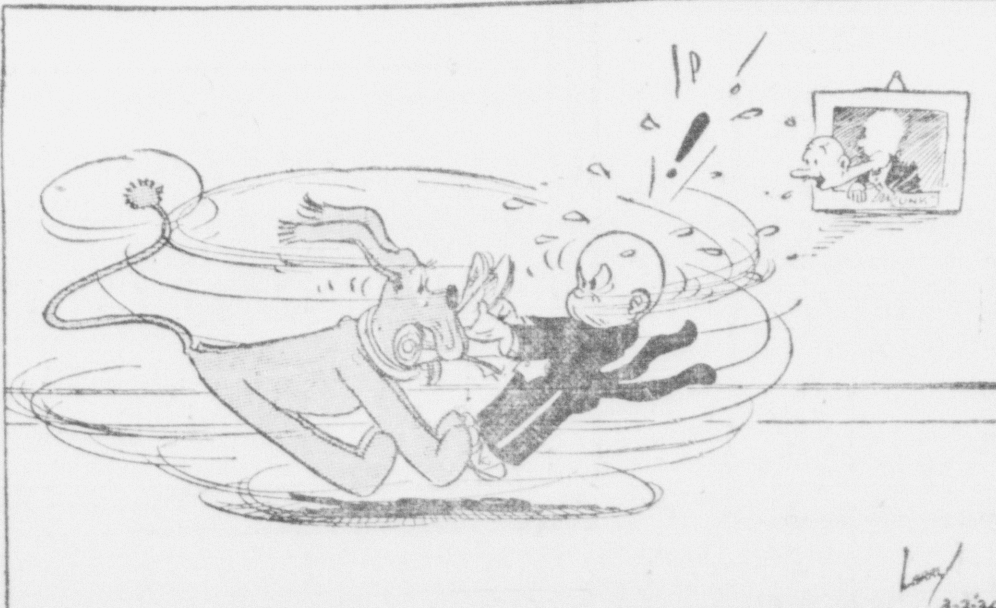

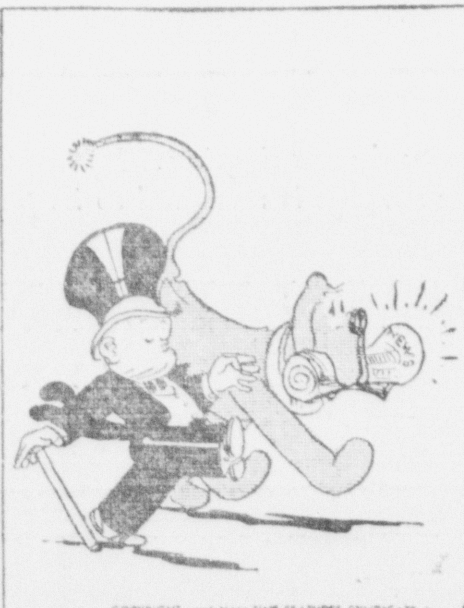

It was in the 1935 Miami-Biltmore tourney that Patty first showed signs of approaching stardom, though she was eliminated before reaching the finals. The stocky, red-headed youngster is a natural athlete—a real tomboy who would rather be halfback on her high school football team than a champion golfer. However, there is nothing hard-boiled about her, and her athletic prowess hasn't caused her to lose her feminine appeal.

Her present ambition is to play on the United States Curtis Cup team in Great Britain this spring, and rating her off her Florida form there isn't a chance that they can keep her off the team.

Like Lawson Little, of whom she is a feminine counterpart, Patty is a great match-play golfer—a born competitor with plenty of "fighting heart."
